Jackie Moeller is an associate vice president specializing in investment sales at Kidder Mathews. While majoring in international relations, she was also an elite competitor in track and field and completed her undergraduate studies in Germany.

Upon her arrival back to the United States, she quickly found an attraction to real estate and development. Her first introduction was as project manager for ROEM Corp. Construction and Housing Development. This was where Jackie discovered her innate ability for client interaction and sales. After two successful years off-seeing ground-up construction, she moved to a more hands-on construction and real estate experience at Hudson Partners, a full-service company which incorporated real estate agent activities, upon completion of each project. Jacqueline's sales skills in real estate began to stand out as her strongest characteristic. During her first 12 months, through cold calling and door knocking, she was able to double the firm's annual revenue. Her tenacity and relentless work ethic made her quickly realize bigger ticket items such as commercial real estate would be her calling.
